PROCUREMENT OF LEASE OF MEDICAL DIAGNOSTIC IMAGING EQUIPMENTS

The MOHW is seeking to enter into a lease arrangement for the provision of forty-nine (49) medical diagnostic imaging equipment covering the supply, installation, commissioning, maintenance, training and ICT infrastructure. The range of MDI equipment required by hospitals of the Regional Health Authorities include:

1. COMPUTERIZED TOMOGRAPHY (CAT) SCANNERS

A medical imaging method that combines multiple X-Ray projections taken from different angles to produce detailed cross-sectional images of areas inside the body. CT images allow doctors to get very precise, 3-D views of certain parts of the body, such as soft tissues, the pelvis, blood vessels, the lungs, the brain, the heart, abdomen and bones. CT is often the preferred method of diagnosing many cancers, such as liver, lung and pancreatic cancers.

2. ULTRASOUND SYSTEMS

Diagnostic ultrasound, also known as medical sonography or ultrasonography, uses high frequency sound waves to create images of the inside of the body. The ultrasound machine sends sound waves into the body and can convert the returning sound echoes into a picture. Ultrasound technology can also produce images of internal organs and structures, map blood flow and tissue motion, and provide highly accurate blood velocity information to assess patient's health.
